ACHC and HON Partner to Promote Renal Home Dialysis

Cary, NC – Accreditation Commission for Health Care (ACHC) announces its partnership with Home Options Network (HON), an organization that provides clinical and operational support for home renal dialysis programs. Through this collaboration, HON and ACHC seek to promote quality improvements that best meet provider and patient needs.

“Both ACHC and HON are committed to advancing the role that home renal dialysis programs play in our communities,” said Teresa Hoosier, ACHC Program Manager. “Together, we offer valuable resources and education that help home renal dialysis programs enhance business efficiencies while driving advancements in patient care and safety.”

The collaboration gives HON members special pricing on ACHC Renal Dialysis Accreditation and discounts on ACHCU educational resources that can help them prepare for accreditation.

“HON is pleased to join forces with ACHC, a respected symbol of quality in the industry,” said Joseph Connor, Home Options Network Clinic Manager. “Through this partnership, providers have additional tools at their fingertips to ensure their home programs are meeting the highest standards of safety and quality of care for patients.”

HON provides members with ongoing support services to help establish and expand independent home programs. In addition to member-status services, HON offers a variety of a la carte services to facilities that are not HON-member clinics, including a Nurse Mentorship program.
