ACHC and Careficient Form New Partnership

CARY, N.C. – Leading accreditor Accreditation Commission for Health Care (ACHC) announced today it is partnering with Careficient, a top provider of electronic medical record solutions for in-home care organizations.

"ACHC and Careficient are focused on improving patient care," said Susan Mills, ACHC Senior Program Director. "By partnering with Careficient, we emphasize our commitment to helping home-based healthcare organizations stay compliant and continuously improve."

"We are thrilled to partner with ACHC to bring even greater value to our healthcare clients." said Kristie Meers, Careficient Chief Clinical Officer. "This collaboration aligns with our mission to enhance patient care by providing our clients with not only the best EMR solutions but also the highest standards of accreditation and education. Together, we are committed to supporting healthcare providers in their journey to excellence."

The new collaboration allows Careficient customers to receive preferred pricing on ACHC Accreditation for hospice, home health, home care, and palliative care services. Discounts are also available on select resources offered by ACHCU, the education division of ACHC.
